Campus is big, don't get lost!

01

Welcome.

Congratulations Summit class of '16. Get ready for an exciting week of events and workshops that will be sure to leave a lasting impact on your entrepreneurial journeys.

Dear Delegate,

Welcome to ASES Summit 2016 at Stanford University! Over the past few years I have helped with ASES Summit, I have watched the conference evolve and become the incredible event it is today.

As you know, the theme this year is “Designing for Global Entrepreneurship.” In past years, our theme has been “Technology Disrupting Society,” so I am excited to see a new emphasis on design applied to entrepreneurship. I hope you will find the events useful and applicable in your everyday life.

During Summit, you will experience many of the exciting things that make Silicon Valley a truly special place to be. To get the most out of your Summit experience, go into the week with an open mind and always stay eager to learn. Yunha, Ashwin, and the rest of the Summit team have been working tirelessly to assemble an awesome program that we hope will inspire you to turn your dreams into reality.

Get ready for an amazing week!

Best regards,

ASES President

2016 Summit.

The theme for this year's Summit is Designing for Global Entrepreneurship. In an increasingly connected world, the need for technology and ideas designed for a global audience is of the utmost importance. As John Maeda, Design Partner at KPCB, former President of RISD, and keynote speaker at this year's conference describes, "Design is moving from 'nice-to-have' to 'need-to-have' – we can no longer tolerate a poor experience." With this goal in mind, we will be bringing together leading designers and entrepreneurs from Silicon Valley to explore how companies are tackling the global problems of today.

We believe that, even as young professionals barely beginning our careers, by exposing ourselves to this innovative way of problem solving and adopting international perspectives, we can position ourselves to have impacts in whichever field we choose, on a global scale.

As well as learning from our speakers and workshop leaders, we urge you to make a concerted effort to connect with delegates from other countries. Talk with them, work with them, and get to know the world through their eyes. You might be surprised by what you find.

Global
Entrepreneurship

Dear Delegate:

On behalf of the rest of the rest of the Summit team and Stanford ASES as a whole, welcome to ASES Summit 2016 at Stanford University! We are so glad to have you with us this week for our 18th annual ASES Summit, and we could not be more excited to meet you.

Our delegates this year make up one of the most diverse, accomplished, and impressive classes yet. Overall, your delegate class is made up of 35 exceptional students from 13 countries across the Asia-Pacific Region, studying a variety of subjects from finance to literature and pursuing an impressive array of personal projects.

We encourage you to push the boundaries of your comfort zone this week, and get to know each and every one of your fellow delegates. In past years, Summit delegates have gone on to produce award winning projects at other conferences, create startups together, and form friendships that will last a lifetime.

Have fun, take risks, and make mistakes. Let's get to work!

Best Regards,

03

Speakers & Judges.

We have an incredible line-up of speakers and judges for you this year. We'll have many opportunities for you to ask them questions so read up on their bios!

Richard Dasher

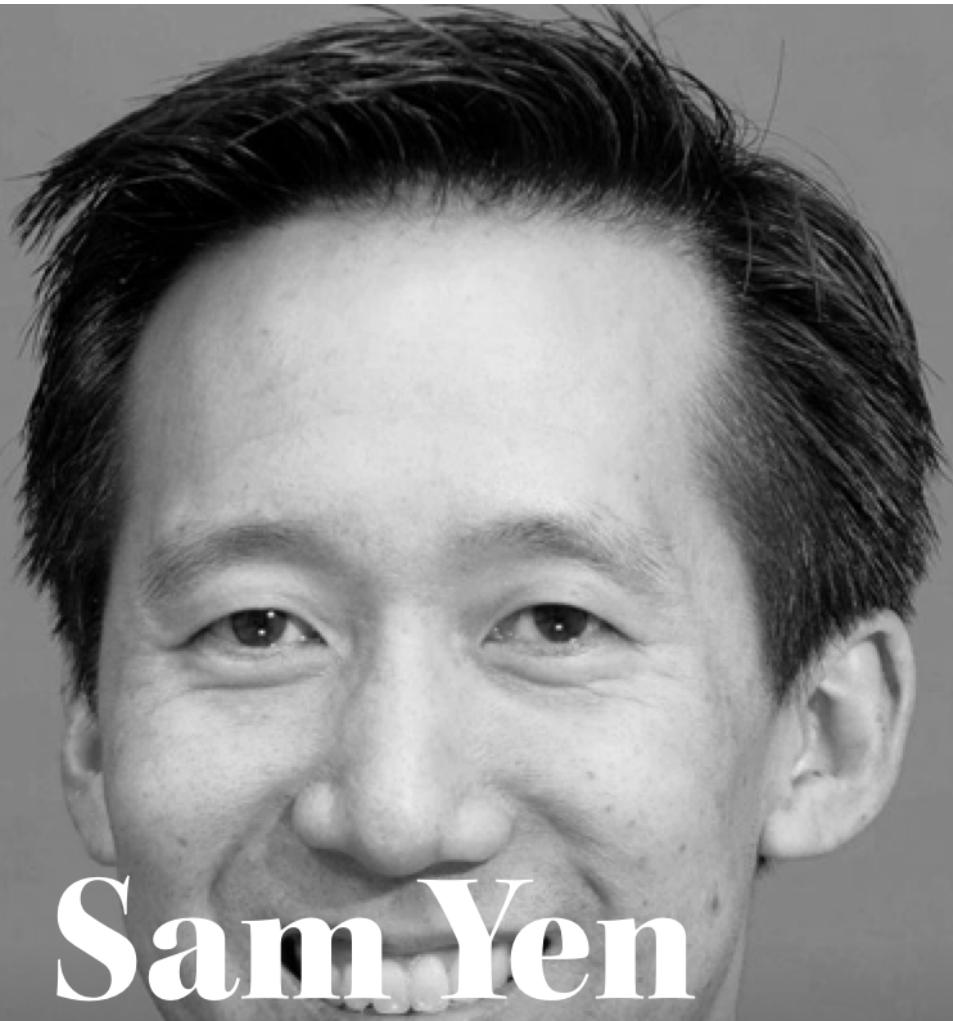

Dr. Richard Dasher has directed the US-Asia Technology Management Center at Stanford University since 1994, and he has been Executive Director of the Center for Integrated Systems since 1998. He holds Consulting Professor appointments at Stanford in the Departments of Electrical Engineering (technology management), Asian Languages and Cultures (Japanese business), and at the Asia-Pacific Research Center for his work with the Stanford Program on Regions of Innovation and Entrepreneurship. Dr. Dasher maintains an active management consulting practice, through which he is an advisor to start-up companies and large firms in the U.S., Japan, and China. Dr. Dasher frequently gives speeches and seminars throughout Japan and Asia, as well as in the U.S. Recent appearances include the Nikkei Shimbun Business Innovation Forum, the Foreign Correspondents Club of Japan, speaking tours of Japan co-sponsored by METI and the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo, and guest lectures at Chubu University, Kochi University of Technology, Ritsumeikan Asia Pacific University, and the University of Tokyo.

Garry Tan

Garry Tan is a designer, engineer, and investor in early stage startups.

Previously a partner at Y Combinator, he invested in and directly worked with over 700 companies in 5 years from the earliest possible stage, often just an idea. Garry had the luck of being an angel investor in seed rounds for successful startups including Zenefits, Instacart, Coinbase, Teespring, and Genius just to name a few. Before that, Garry cofounded Posterous and helped build it to a world-class website used by millions (acquired by Twitter). Garry also cofounded the engineering team for Palantir Technology's quant finance analysis platform.

Sam Yen

Sam Yen is now the chief design officer at SAP, but growing up in San Francisco he wanted to be an astronaut. Reality set in when he had to get glasses, but Sam's passion for space continued through his formal education. He received Aerospace degrees from Cornell and Stanford (MS), and worked at NASA Ames Research Center and the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. While at Stanford, Sam took a course on design thinking that changed his life. He switched departments and completed a PhD in Design Theory and Methodology, focusing on successful practices of innovation teams, then went on to found his own enterprise software company. In 2004, SAP founder Hasso Plattner met David Kelley, founder of IDEO and the d.school. Hasso wanted to introduce and accelerate design thinking at SAP, and Sam was brought in as one of the first external members of the team. He went on to found the SAP AppHaus, an innovation group that builds highly-desirable experiences to enrich the way people work and live. Sam is married and has two kids, and is a longtime collaborator with the d.school. He brings deep experience in spreading design thinking to individuals, teams and organizations, and will continue this mission as a d.school fellow.

Kakul Srivastava

Kakul Srivastava is VP of Product Management at Github. She is a tech entrepreneur focused on building companies that empower people and create community. Kakul has helped build some of the best loved consumer tech products -- Adobe's Photoshop line of software, Flickr, Yahoo! Messenger, and Yahoo! Mail. She was the founder and CEO of Tomfoolery, Inc., a business dedicated to making beautiful social apps for work. Tomfoolery was bought by Yahoo in 2014. Most recently, Kakul was the CPO for WeWork, a $10B company focused on empowering millennial entrepreneurs and creators. She lives in SF with her husband and two children. Kakul is a graduate of MIT with a BSc in Mechanical Engineering, and also holds an MBA from the University of California, Berkeley Haas School of Business. She serves as Co-Chair on the Board of Cure Violence, a non-profit dedicated to stopping violence in some of the world's most high-risk communities, and is an active volunteer, advising in official and unofficial roles, to a number of start-ups and non-profits.

Julie Zhuo

Julie Zhuo leads the design team focused on engagement and core experiences at Facebook, including News Feed, content discovery, and Facebook's mobile apps. She has been at Facebook since 2006 helping the service grow from 8 million users to over 1 billion. She designed much of the original Facebook platform and the Like button you see embedded on sites across the web. Prior to Facebook, Julie graduated from Stanford with a B.S. and M.S. in Computer Science, where she was a Mayfield Fellow and coordinated the well-known CS198 program of student Computer Science instructors. In her spare time, she likes writing about design, playing video games, and exploring SF's delectable food scene.

Bart Decrem

Bart Decrem most recently worked at The Walt Disney Company where, from 2010 until 2013, he was SVP and General Manager for Disney Mobile Games, the group behind smartphone smash hits such as Where's My Water, Temple Run: Oz and Where's My Mickey. Previously, Bart was founder and CEO of Tapulous, one of the first companies in the iPhone space, and makers of Tap Tap Revenge, the most popular music game of all times. In all, Bart has headed the development of twenty-five number-one App Store hits. Bart also founded web browser company Flock (acquired by Zynga), co-founded Linux desktop startup Eazel, and ran marketing and business affairs for the launch of Firefox. In between, Bart has been an Entrepreneur In Residence at Doll Capital Management and worked on a number of community projects. Bart was born and raised in Belgium and holds a J.D. degree from Stanford Law School. Bart has been featured as one of Fast Company's 100 Most Creative People in Business (May 2009), in Advertising Age's "2010 Creativity 50" (March 2010) and in Newsweek's "Silicon Valley Future Superstars" (April 2010). In early 2016, Bart started working on a new project, to be announced in the coming months.

John Maeda

John Maeda is an American designer, technologist and catalyst behind the national movement to transform STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) to STEAM. He served as the 16th President of the Rhode Island School of Design (RISD) where, as chief executive, he repositioned the esteemed and historic institution to regain its top position in the new economy. An internationally recognized thought leader at the intersection of design and technology, Maeda now works with early-, mid- and late-stage start-up CEOs as Design Partner at Kleiner Perkins Caufield & Byers in Silicon Valley.

Eugene Chung

Eugene Chung is a film director and the founder of Penrose, a startup focused on augmented and virtual reality. Penrose is a team of veterans in VR and CG filmmaking, and its VR creations include The Rose And I (Sundance New Frontiers 2016) and Allumette. Previously, Eugene was Head of Film & Media and co-creator of Story Studio at Oculus VR, which was later acquired by Facebook for $2 billion. He holds degrees from UC Berkeley and Harvard.

Judges.

Evan Tana

Co-Founder, Sparks

Evan Tana serves as the President and Director of Sparks Mobile, Inc. Evan co-founded Sparks Mobile. Previously, he was an Entrepreneur in Residence at Greylock Partners. Prior to joining Greylock, he was a Vice President of Product Management at shopkick. Evan was responsible for product management, design leadership, content merchandising, quality assurance and customer service. He was part of the founding team that launched the revolutionary service in 2010 that rewards shopping across a retail network that includes thirteen nationwide chains. Prior to that, Evan led product at Loopt. Evan earned a Master's and a Bachelor's degree in Management Science and Engineering from Stanford, where he was a Mayfield Fellow. Evan is a former ASES president.

Laura Chau

Associate, Canaan Partners

Laura Chau is an investor at Canaan Partners, where she focuses on investments in early-stage enterprise and consumer tech companies. She works closely with several Canaan Portfolio companies, including Cargomatic, Cuyana, ClusterHQ, Beckon, and Unifi Software.

Prior to joining Canaan, Laura worked at Deloitte Consulting as part of the Strategy and Operations practice where she focused on advising clients on growth strategy and post-merger integrations. Laura is a former ASES President.

Sungjoon Cho

Principal, Formation Group

Sungjoon Cho focuses on investments with strong cross-border potential. Before joining Formation 8, Sungjoon was a consultant in McKinsey & Company's New Jersey office where he worked on technology projects ranging from SMB SaaS and Digital Media market entry, to Cybersecurity strategy and Semiconductor M&A. Sungjoon started his career at Samsung's headquarters in Korea, first in product planning and business development within Samsung Semiconductor's mobile application processor group, where he managed partnerships with an array of chip makers and software solution specialists to extend Samsung's presence in the mobile processor market. He then spent 2 years on the executive staff of the Samsung Group COO, where he managed the COO's international operations. Sungjoon earned a B.S. in Electrical Engineering from the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, an M.S. in Electrical Engineering from Seoul National University, and an M.B.A. from Columbia Business School.
